The Library Department of The Boston Book Company is established to give libraries reliable assistance in supplying and completing, at reasonable cost, their periodical sets, American, English, or Foreign.

"POOLE, ABRIDGED."

A SUMMER duty to your library is to complete the sets to be indexed in

POOLE, ABRIDGED.

It is now in press, and to be published during the current year. It indexes thirty-seven (37) sets, from Vol. I. to Dec., 1899.

These sets will be in great demand, and will rise in price as soon as the book is ready. Now is the time to order, before the rush begins. Send to us for the list of sets to be included, that we may offer you the ones you lack. We shall quietly buy up, at present low prices, what we need to fill sets ordered. You can save your book fund by ordering now. Delivery and payment at your pleasure.

CHILDREN'S PERIODICALS.

St. Nicholas, N. Y. Vols. 1–24, 1873–1897, making 42 volumes. Selected copies, $40.00

This is a children's library in itself, and in unusually good condition. Other sets at lower prices.

Harper's Young People, N. Y. Vols. 1–18, and n. s. v. 1–2; 1880–99. The complete set of the weekly and the monthly issues, $60.00

This set has all the very scarce titles and contents and the extra supplements seldom present in sets. Other sets cheaper in stock.

Wide Awake, Boston. 1875–93, 37 volumes all published, $60.00

Sets of this juvenile are very hard to make up complete. It was merged in St. Nicholas.

Our Young Folks, 1865–73, 9 volumes all published, cloth, $12.00. Also sets unbound and in half morocco at different prices.

This was edited by Trowbridge, Lucy Larcom and Gail Hamilton, and was one of the best magazines of its class ever published. It was merged in St. Nicholas.

Oliver Optic's Magazine for Young Folks. 18 vols. 1867–75, unbound, all published, $25.00.

Riverside Magazine, Boston, 4 vols., 1867–70, all published, $12.00.

Considered by many the finest children's periodical ever published.

Illustrated London News, ten odd volumes (bound), for use in the children's room, or for cutting, $8.00

Special Offer to Libraries until August 20.

We will sell the above six sets (and 20 vols. London News for picture cutting), 150 vols., $200.00.

Bulletin of Bibliography

VOL. 2 JULY, 1900 No. 4

This Bulletin is published, primarily, as a means of communication between the Boston Book Company and its customers. A constant endeavor will be made, however, to include in each issue enough original matter of sufficient value to induce librarians to preserve and bind up the numbers. Each volume will be provided with a title-page and an index.

No subscription price will be put upon the journal, and numbers will not be sold. It will be sent to a selected list of libraries, customers or likely to become customers of the Boston Book Company. The circulation of the Bulletin will be increased in proportion to the interest shown in it, and in the special work of the Library Department of the Boston Book Company. Correspondence is solicited, and should be addressed,

The Boston Book Company,
15½ Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

EDITORIAL.

THE whole edition of the BULLETIN OF BIBLIOGRAPHY (save the few numbers laid aside for future binding into volumes) is mailed as published to libraries; regularly to our customers, occasionally to those not yet upon our books, in the hope that they may be led to give us their orders for periodical sets, our special field. We make this statement in response to the many inquiries which we constantly receive. Send us an order and we will mail the BULLETIN to your library for the coming year.

AN ABRIDGED POOLE.

AN event of more than usual interest will be the publication, during the present year, of an ABRIDGED POOLE'S INDEX TO PERIODICALS, comprising references to a selected list of sets. Some such work has long been needed, especially by smaller libraries, which could not afford the large index, or, if they were fortunate enough to possess it, could not buy many of the periodicals which it indexed.

Such a publication as the Abridgment now in press will be indispensable to the small library, and, from its one alphabet and more compact form, will be in demand in all public and college libraries where any reference work is done. (See page 49, back of front cover.)

OLIVER CROMWELL.

AN ANNOTATED LIST OF BOOKS AND ARTICLES FOR THE STUDY OF CROMWELL AND HIS TIMES.

Compiled by Mary Medlicott, of the City Library, Springfield, Mass., from bibliographies by J. H. Swann of Manchester, Eng., The Nottingham (Eng.) Library Bulletin, and other lists.

PART II.

Histories, Memoirs, Collections.

Ashburnham, John. Narrative of his attendance on King Charles I. . . . To which is prefixed a vindication of his character and conduct. . . 1830. 2 vols.

A full narrative drawn up by him and shown to many of his contemporaries — Clarendon among the rest — remained unpublished until 1830, when his descendant, Lord Ashburnham, printed it with full elucidation, and accompanied it with a complete, caustic commentary on all the passages wherein Clarendon has made mention of the writer. The reputation of Ashburnham is cleared, and the treachery and malevolence of the noble historian are exposed with unsparing severity. — Dict. Nat. Biog.

Baillie, Robt. Letters and journals, 1637–1662. Ed. by D. Laing. 1841. 3 vols.

His "Letters and Journals" are for Scotland much what Pepys and Evelyn are for England. — Dict. Nat. Biog.

Balfour, Sir James. Historical works: Annales of Scotland (Vols. 3 and 4, 1641–1652). 1825.

A valuable contemporary record. — Gardiner & M.

Baxter, Richard. Reliquæ Baxterianæ: or, Mr. Richard Baxter's narrative of the most memorable passages of his life and times. Faithfully published from his own original manuscript by Matthew Sylvester. 1686.

Supplies the Presbyterian view of affairs. — Firth.

Throws light on the moral and social condition of the masses. — Gardiner & M.

Berkeley, Sir John. Memoirs, containing an account of his negotiation with Lieut-Gen. Cromwell . . . for restoring King Charles I. to the exercise of the government of England. 1826.

Birch, Colonel John, Parliamentary Governor of Hereford. Military memoir. Written by Roe, his secretary. With . . . commentary, notes and appendix, by the late Rev. John Webb. Edited by the Rev. T. W. Webb. Camden Society, N. S. 7. 1873.

Bisset, Andrew. History of the struggle for parliamentary government in England. 1877. 2 vols.

This work is the fruit of long and careful investigation, and is one of the strongest presentations of the case against the king ever published. — Adams.

— History of the Commonwealth of England. 1867. 2 vols.

Covers the years 1649–53, and is based on the Domestic State Papers. — Firth.

Mr. Bisset condemns Cromwell for the course he took in dissolving the Long Parliament, and thinks that much of the credit of the Protector's rule was due to the Council, and especially to the wisdom of Blake, for whom he entertains an extravagant and almost unbounded admiration. — Adams.

Bright, J. F. A history of England. (Vol. 2. 1485–1688.) 1887.

It is clear, careful and accurate . . . a book of solid rather than of brilliant qualities. — Adams.

Brodie, George. A [constitutional] history of the British Empire, from the accession of Charles I. to the Restoration . . . 1822. 4 vols.

While the author is a vigorous supporter of the Revolutionary policy, he condemns the course of Cromwell after the establishment of the Commonwealth. — Adams.

Burnet, Bp. G. The memoires of the lives and actions of James and William, Dukes of Hamilton and Castleherald, etc. In which an account is given of the . . . civil wars of Scotland . . . 1625 to 1652. 1677.

Burton, Thomas. Diary of Thomas Burton, Esq., member in the parliaments of Oliver and Richard Cromwell, 1656–1659. Ed. by J. T. Rutt. 1828. 4 vols.

Supplies materials for an account of Cromwell's relations with his parliaments. — Firth.

Byington, E. H. The Puritan in England and New England. 1896.

Showing the causes which led to the emigration of the Puritans from England under Charles I.

Calendar of the proceedings of the Committee for Advance of Money. 1642–1656 . . . Edited by M. A. E. Green. 1888. 3 vols.

A very valuable addition to the records of the Long Parliament and the Commonwealth. In addition to their primary value as financial records, these volumes contain a mine of information for the biographer and genealogist. — Eng. Hist. Rev.

Calendar of the proceedings of the Committee for Compounding, etc., 1643–1660. . . Edited by M. A. E. Green. 1889–92. 5 vols.

In August, 1644, the principle of compounding with delinquents began to be acted upon, but only as to prisoners, or those whose estates were already sequestered, and who, for the sake of liberty of person or lands, were willing to come to a compromise with the ruling powers, and sacrifice part of their estate to save the remainder. — Preface, Vol. I.

Calendar of State Papers. Domestic series. 1640–1660. Edited (to 1649) by W. D. Hamilton; (to 1660) by M. A. E. Green. 1880–86. 20 vols.

Indispensable for a thorough study of the period.

Carlyle, Thomas. Historical sketches of notable persons and events in the reigns of James I. and Charles I. Ed. by Alex. Carlyle. 1898.

Carte, Thomas. History of the life of James, Duke of Ormonde, 1610–1688, wherein is contained an account of the most remarkable affairs of his time, and particularly of Ireland, under his government. 1736. 3 vols.

He labors to prove that the pretended commission given by Charles at Oxford (12 Jan., 1644-5) to Lord Glamorgan (Lord Herbert) for treating with the Irish catholics was a forgery of Glamorgan's. The book is still of value from the mass of materials which his diligence collected. — Dict. Nat. Biog.

Cary, Henry. Memorials of the Great Civil War. Edited from original letters in the Bodleian Library [Tanner MSS.]. 1842. 2 vols.

Cattermole, Richard. Great civil war of the times of Charles I and Cromwell. 1857.

With illustrations of men and events.

Charles I. Letters to Queen Henrietta Maria, in 1646. Ed. by John Bruce. Camden Soc. 1856. No. 63.

Christie, W. C. Life of Anthony Ashley Cooper, first Earl of Shaftesbury, 1621–1683. 1871. 2 vols.

Mr. Christie has undertaken the justification of one whose brilliant powers no one denies, but who is commonly held to have abused them for the basest of purposes. . . He asks us to believe that Shaftesbury was not the double-dyed villain that he appears in the pages of Lord Macaulay and Lord Campbell. . . Mr. Christie has been more successful in clearing Shaftesbury of great crimes than in giving a favourable impression of his general political conduct. — Sat. Rev.

Clarendon, E. H., Earl of. History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars in England. . . . Edited by W. D. Macray. 1888. 6 vols.

His admirable delineations of character and general ability as a writer have obtained for his History a reputation much beyond that deserved by its historic merits, the work having been really designed as an elaborate justification of the royalist party. — Gardiner and M. See also Rank's History, Vol. 6.

One of the greatest defects of Clarendon is his confused and careless chronology, due in part to a faithless memory, in part to the fact that he wrote much of his history far from the papers which would have enabled him to be more exact, and long after the events he was relating. The full extent of this inaccuracy is for the first time shown by Mr. Macray's annotations, but the disclosures can hardly be considered a disservice to Clarendon's reputation. — Eng. Hist. Rev.

— State papers. . . . commencing from 1621, containing the materials from which his History of the Great Rebellion was composed. 1767. 2 vols.

Clowes, Wm. L. The royal navy: a history . . . (Vol. 2, chaps. 20 and 21, for the Commonwealth period). 1897.

Cobbett, (W.). Parliamentary history of England. Vols. 2 and 3. 1807.

Collins, (Arthur). Letters and memorials of state in the reigns of Queen Mary [etc.] . . . and Oliver's usurpation, faithfully transcribed from the originals at Penshurst Place in Kent, and from His Majesty's Office of Papers and Records of State. 1746. 2 vols.

Commonly called the Sidney Papers.

Corbet, (Julian). Monk (English men of action). 1889.

It contains a succinct and able resumé of the eventful era of the Civil War, of the rule of Cromwell, and of the Restoration, in which Monk was the conspicuous figure; and it sets his personality clearly before us in distinct relief and in true proportion. — Academy.

Douglas, (W. S.). Cromwell's Scotch campaigns, 1650-51. 1898.

Mr. Douglas has been able to bring under contribution some new sources of information, and possesses a far more complete knowledge of the ground over which Cromwell's army manœuvred than can possibly be acquired by a mere interloper from the south. — Eng. Hist. Rev.

Evelyn, (John) Diary. To which are added a selection from his familiar letters. . . Edited from the original MSS. by William Bray. A new edit. . . . with a life of the author by Henry B. Wheatley. 1879. 4 vols.

"It is full of value on account of the importance of the information contained in it and the pleasing manner in which that information is conveyed. . . . Duty kept him true to his king, and made him a representative cavalier." H. B. W.

Fairfax Correspondence. Memoirs of the reign of Charles I. Edited by G. W. Johnson. 2 vols. Memorials of the Civil War. Edited by Robert Bell. 2 vols. 1848-49.

Selected from the papers of the Fairfax family.

Firth, C. H., editor. The Clarke papers. Selections from the papers of William Clarke, secretary to the Council of the Army, 1647-1649 and to General Monck and the commanders of the army in Scotland, 1651-1660. 2 vols. Camden Soc., N. S. 49, 54. 1891-94.

Taken altogether, these Clarke Papers bring strongly out the conservative and hesitating side of Cromwell's character, whilst they also bring us, as we have never been brought before, into the very heart of that army, in the midst of which Cromwell lived and moved, and enable us to trace the movements of political thought which afterwards developed themselves in the constitutional experiments of the Commonwealth. — Gardiner.

— Life of Thomas Harrison, major-general in the army of the Commonwealth of England, and one of the Judges of King Charles I. 1893.

The sketch, as a whole, is an interesting and painstaking record of a man who, if somewhat of an enthusiast on some questions, was yet a sincere and ardent worker for liberty and righteousness as he understood them. — Eng. Hist. Rev.

— Scotland and the Protectorate. Letters and papers relating to the military government of Scotland, 1654-1659. Scottish Hist. Soc. 1899.

Forster, John. Historical and biographical essays. (The Civil Wars and Oliver Cromwell, p. 241.) 1858.

The aspects of Cromwell's character as presented by Guizot and Carlyle are well discussed. — Adams.

Froude, J. A. The English in Ireland in the eighteenth century. [Vol. I., chap. 2, sections 5 and 6, deal with Cromwell in Ireland.] 1872.

Gardiner, Bertha M. (Mrs. S. R.) and Phillpotts, J. S. King and commonwealth; a history of Charles I. and the Great Rebellion. 1874.

Gardiner, S. R. First two Stuarts and Puritan revolutions, 1603-60. 1876. Epochs of Modern History.

— History of England . . . 1603-1642. 1884-7. 10 vols.

We greatly mistake if in Mr. Gardiner's "History of England" our times have not produced a work destined to teach many a generation after them the true historical antecedents and conditions of the greatest political struggle through which our nation has passed. — Sat. Rev.

— History of the Great Civil War, 1642-1649. 1883-93. 10 vols.

Gives the fullest, most critical, and most authoritative account of the whole period. — Traill.

— History of the Commonwealth and Protectorate, 1649-1660. 1894-(Vols. 1 and 2).

Mr. Gardiner is to be specially congratulated on the appearance of Vol. I. of the last division of his great work. . . Only those, perhaps, who have had occasion to study minutely certain special aspects or portions of this period of history can realise how thoroughly the task is being performed: but with each succeeding volume his mastery of the period becomes more apparent, even to the general reader, in the luminous coherency of the narrative as a whole, not less than in the elucidation of many points hitherto obscure or dubious. — T. F. Henderson. Eng. Hist. Rev.

— Student's History of England . . . to 1885. 1890-92. 3 vols.

Briefer, and better suited for school use and popular use than his larger history.

— editor. Constitutional documents of the Puritan Revolution, 1628–1660. 1889.

— editor. Letters and papers relating to the first Dutch war, 1652–54. Vol. I. Navy Records Society, 13. 1899.

Gilbert, Sir J. T., editor. A contemporary histoy of affairs in Ireland from 1641 to 1652. 1879–80. Irish Arch. and Celtic Society. 6 vols.

The new evidence [as here given] tends to convict Charles I. of complicity with the Irish Catholics, in order to secure their assistance against his own Parliament. — Adams.

Godwin, W. History of the Commonwealth of England. 1824–2. 4 vols.

Still valuable from the author's knowledge of the pamphlet literature of the period. — Firth.

The Government of the Common-wealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the dominions thereto belonging; as it was publickly declared at Westminster, the 16 day of December, 1653. . . . Published by His Highness the Lord Protector's special commandment. 1653.

Grant, James. British battles on land and sea. Vol. 1. 1873–75.

Gives many illustrations of the places where battles were fought or sieges made by Cromwell and his men.

Green, J. R. History of the English people. (Vol. 3. Puritan England, 1603–1660.) 1879.

By far the most important general history of England that has ever been written. — Adams.

— Short history of the English people. Vol. 3. Illustrated edition. 1893.

If Mr. Green's style has a fault, it is the rather unusual one of excess of brilliancy. . . The value of his book lies above all in the power it shows of conceiving a period as a whole, of tracing the causes and results of events, and of following the great currents of thought. — Sat. Rev.

Guizot, F. G. P. History of the English revolution, 1640-1856.

Guizot has seized with great firmness the leading characteristics of the period. Adams.

— History of Oliver Cromwell and the English Commonwealth. Trans. by A. R. Scoble. 1854. 2 vols.

The fairest and best account of the period for the general reader. The foreign politics and wars are admirably illustrated with a copious appendix of documents. — Green.

— History of Richard Cromwell and the restoration of Charles II. Trans. by A. R. Scoble. 1856. 2 vols.

— Memoirs of George Monk, Duke of Albemarle. Trans. and edited . . . by the Hon. J. Stuart Wortley. 1838.

The volumes on Richard Cromwell and Monk are very full and satisfactory, and form an almost unique description of the difficulties and complications of the time. — Adams.

Hallam, Henry. The constitutional history of England from . . . Henry VII. to the death of George II. 1850. 2 vols.

Its judicial spirit of fairness to all persons and parties makes it popular with judicious minds, in spite of all its shortcomings. — Adams.

Hamilton papers; being selections from original letters (in the possession of the Duke of Hamilton and Grafton) relating to the years 1638–1650. Edited by S. R. Green. Camden Soc., N. S. 27. 1880.

Hammond, Col. Robert. Letters between R. H. and the Committee of Lords and Commons . . . relating to King Charles I. 1764.

Contains several of Cromwell's letters.

Hanbury, Benjamin. Historical memorials relating to the Independents or Congregationalists: from their rise to the restoration of the monarchy, A. D. 1660. 1839–44.

His most important literary service to his denomination was a digest of the materials for their earlier history, including a rich and accurate collection of documents illustrating the rise of nonconformity. — Dict. Nat. Biog.

Hannay, David. Admiral Blake. 1886. English worthies.

Deals with the navy and the wars of the Commonwealth period.

Harleian miscellany, vol. 8. Various papers concerning the times of Charles I. and Cromwell: Strafford's letter to the king; Archbishop Laud's speech on the scaffold, etc.

Historical Manuscripts Commission. (See reports on the MSS. of Lowndes, Verney, Dukes of Sutherland, Manchester, and Somerset, and Marquis of Ormonde.)

Historical memoirs of the Irish rebellion, 1641; extracted from parliamentary journals, etc. 1758.

A vindication of the Irish from the charges of disloyalty and cruelty to the English.

Hodgson, Capt. John, of Coley Hall, near Halifax. Autobiography. . . With notes by J. H. Turner. 1882.

His description of the battle of Dunbar is the most valuable portion of his "Autobiography." — Dict. Nat. Biog.

Holles, Denzil, Lord. Memoirs, 1641 to 1648. 1699 Another edit. 1826.

May be looked upon as a rejoinder to Ludlow. The production of a zealous royalist, during the time of his exile. — G. & M.

Hosmer, J. K. Life of young Sir Henry Vane, governor of Massachusetts Bay, and leader of the Long Parliament. With a consideration of the English Commonwealth as a forecast of America. 1888.

Students, perhaps, would rank Vane, among the men of his age and party, next to Cromwell, Hampden and Pym; but, to the majority of careless readers, his name probably hardly calls up any distinct memory or association. . . The chapters which touch upon Vane's religious beliefs are very valuable. — Nation.

Hume, David. History of England. (Vols. 6 and 7.) 1793.

The portion relating to the reign of the Stuarts was the first written, and is, perhaps, the most faulty. . . Brodie, in his "Constitutional History," has shown the worthlessness of Hume's account of this period, and has made it plain that it is "a fictitious philosophy buttressed by a fictitious narrative." — Adams.

Huntingdon, Maj. R. Sundry reasons inducing Maj. R. H. to lay down his commission. Presented . . . August 2nd, 1648. 1826.

Hutchinson, Lucy. Memoirs of the life of Colonel Hutchinson, governor of Nottingham Castle and town. Edited by C. H. Firth. 1885. 2 vols.

Gives the views of the republican opposition. — Firth.

Throws much light on the conduct of the committees through which Parliament worked, and the machinery whereby it maintained its authority over the whole kingdom. — G. & M.

Journals of the House of Lords and House of Commons for the period.

Knight, Charles. Popular history of England. Vols. 3 and 4. 1856–62.

With the excepilon of Green, for the purposes of the general reader, (this) is probably the best history of England yet completed. Illustrations are excellent. — Adams.

Lane, W. Coolidge. The Carlyle Collection. A catalogue of books on Oliver Cromwell . . . bequeathed by Thomas Carlyle to Harvard College Library. 1888.

Langmead, T. P. Taswell. English constitutional history, from the Teutonic conquest to the present time. 5th edit. 1896.

Should be prized for the vast amount of information it brings to the reader. — Adams.

Larned, J. N. History for ready reference. (Vol. 2. England. 1640–1660. pp. 853–893.) 1895.

Lewis, Lady M. T. V. Lives of the friends and contemporaries of Lord Chancellor Clarendon. [Lord Falkland. Lord Capell. Marquis of Hertford.] 1852. 3 vols.

Lingard, John. History of England . . . to 1688 (Vol. 8). 1849.

Useful for information as to intrigues with the Catholics in England and Ireland. — Green.

Ludlow, Edmund. Lieutenant-General of the horse in the army of the Commonwealth. Memoirs. Edited by C. H. Firth. 1894. 2 vols.

Gives the views of the republican opposition. — Firth.

To Ludlow's Memoirs we are indebted for a good illustration of the Cromwellian policy in Ireland. — G. & M.

The reader has to be constantly on his guard against the drawback that much of Ludlow's narrative, though that of a deeply interested contemporary, is secondhand only. — Eng. Hist. Rev.

Markham, Sir C. R. Life of the great Lord Fairfax, commander-in-chief of the army of the Parliament of England. 1870.

A book of real and conscientious work. . . . Mr. Markham's chief object seems to be to challenge for Fairfax his proper place in the military history of the Civil War, in which he holds that [Fairfax's] fame has been unfairly overshadowed by the fame of Cromwell. — Sat. Rev.

Marsden, J. B. History of the later Puritans. 1854.

His volumes deserve to be studied quite as much by such as are anxious about the future, as by those who content themselves with looking continually to the past. — Edinb. Rev.

Masson, David. Life of John Milton: narrated in connection with the political, ecclesiastical, and literary history of his time. 1871–94. 7 vols.

Thoroughness and impartiality are the qualities of highest value, perhaps, in this "Life of Milton." — Spectator.

Although Mr. Masson may not be an elegant historian, he is what is of infinitely greater importance — a singularly accurate and therefore an altogether trustworthy one. — Sat. Rev.

May, Thomas. Secretary to the Parliament. History of the Parliament of England which began November 3rd, 1640. 1647. Reprinted 1812, 1854, etc.

Fairly accurate and impartial. — Green.

His narrative, considering the period, is remarkably free from invective and rancour, and tends to induce the belief that the statements it contains are on the whole faithful and impartial. — G. & M.

ERRATA IN POOLE'S INDEX AND SUPPLEMENTS.

II. The References — (Continued).

Compiled by Frederika Wendté, Boston Public Library.

Part II.

We continue the list of errata in Poole's Index and Supplements, and hope that in the next issue a still further list may appear. This is a coöperative work which should appeal to every librarian. The Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, reports a curious error in the indexing of the "Art Journal." It appears that for the years 1877, 1878, 1879, the American edition was indexed in place of the English, and no note made to show the distinction; furthermore the English volume numbers for those years were used as if that edition were the one indexed. Many of the references are duplicated in the English edition, but the majority are not, and the references are so misleading that we add to the main list a supplementary one of the corrected references to these three volumes, which may help to straighten out the confusion between the two sets.

MAGAZINE PERPLEXITIES.—No. V.

"SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY," SCRANTON, PA.

By A. B. Slauson, Library of Congress.

THE evolution of the new engineering periodical, "Science and Industry," published by the Colliery Engineer Company, Scranton, Pa., is interesting, though the history of its growth is not easy to understand unless one has the complete file of the various publications of the company.

In February, 1896, was started a monthly magazine called "Home Study." In July, 1897, the publishers established three other magazines, "Home Study for Building Trades," "Home Study for Electrical Workers," and "Home Study for Machinists and Steam Engineers." The original "Home Study" changed its name in February, 1897, at the beginning of the second volume, to "Home Study Magazine," and also changed size from quarto to octavo. The four magazines were then published in octavo form each month until January, 1899. In that month "Home Study for Building Trades" changed its name to "The Building Trades Magazine." In February, 1899, the other three magazines were consolidated into two, the original "Home Study" being combined with certain features of "Home Study for Machinists and Steam Engineers," and published under the title of "Mechanic Arts Magazine." "Home Study for Electrical Workers," combined with the steam engineering features of "Home Study for Machinists and Steam Engineers," was then issued under the title, "Steam-Electric Magazine."

In November, 1899, the three existing magazines, "Mechanic Arts Magazine," "Building Trades Magazine," and "Steam-Electric Magazine," were all consolidated into one, under the title, "Science and Industry," the first number under this title carrying on the volume and number of the original "Home Study," as it had been carried through the various titles of "Home Study Magazine" and "Mechanic Arts Magazine," Vol. 4, No. 10, November, 1899. This volume ended with January, 1900.

A summary may well be appended in order to make this more easily understood: —

"Home Study," Vol. 1, Feb., 1896, to Jan., 1897.

"Home Study Magazine," Vols. 2, 3, Feb., 1897, to Jan., 1899.

"Home Study for Building Trades," Vol. 1—Vol. 2, No. 5. July, 1897, to January, 1899 (17 numbers).

"Home Study for Electrical Workers," Vols. 1, 2 (18 numbers), July, 1897, to Jan., 1899 (18 numbers).

"Home Study for Machinists and Steam Engineers," Vols. 1, 2 (18 numbers), July, 1897, to Jan., 1899.

"Mechanic Arts Magazine" (continuation of "Home Study Magazine"), Vol. 4, Nos. 1–9, Feb. to Oct., 1899 (continued as "Science and Industry").

"Building Trades Magazine" (continuation of "Home Study for Building Trades"), Vol. 2, No. 6, Vol. 3, No. 3, Jan. to Oct., 1899.

"Steam-Electric Magazine" (consolidation), Vol. 3, Nos. 1–9, Feb. to Oct., 1899.

"Science and Industry" (final consolidation), Vol. 4, Nos. 10–12, Nov., 1899, to Jan., 1900. Vol. 5, Feb., 1900.
